

REFUSE TO SIGN
CANADA'S PACT

Official Document May Go Into Force Without Canadian Members' Signatures.

IT IS OFFICIAL

Majority of the Court Approved of the Findings as Set Down
Some Time Ago.

London, Oct. 20.—Sir Louis Jette and Allen Aylesworth, the Canadian Alaskan boundary commissioners, refused to sign the decision of that tribunal last evening, and left the room to emphasize their disapproval of it. Lord Alverstone, Secretary Root, Senator Turner and Senator Lodge consequently signed it alone, and, constituting a majority of the tribunal, have recorded a binding verdict.

The agreement has already been printed and is ready for a public session, to be held to-day, at which it will be formally announced and the map which accompanies it will be signed. An engrossed copy of the decision also will be signed then.

Decision Will Stand.

The refusal of Sir Louis Jette and Allen Aylesworth to coincide in Lord Alverstone's view was only known to a few persons here, but at the foreign office and in high government circles it has created a painful impression. There is no hope that they will reconsider their attitude and sign the engrossed copy of the decision, which will stand as the international record of the tribunal's findings.

Must Locate Line.

Washington, Oct. 20.—An apparent conflict in the information from London and the announcement made by a state department official respecting the Alaskan boundary agreement is explained by the statement that the decision was not technically final, because of its omission to locate the "mountain range" referred to in the original Russian treaty of cession as a conditional limit to the American claim.

Must Cross American Territory.

It is said, however, at the state department that this is not material, as every inch of the shore line north of the Portland canal is American territory. Thus, whether the strip be a mile or ten miles, or forty, the Canadians cannot reach the sea without crossing American territory.

It is said in all probability a year will be required to complete the work of delimitation, as the commissioners could only lay down general principles, and could not, in the nature of the case, make a practical survey. This work will be done by experts named by both governments.

RATS GNAW AT DOCTOR'S BODY

Famous Woman Physician's Body Is Found Nearly Consumed
by Rodents.

London, Oct. 20.—The body of Miss Hickman, a doctor, who disappeared on Aug. 15, has been found in an unrefrigerated part of Richmond Park. The remains were horribly decomposed, the head having been entirely separated from the body, apparently by the gnawing of rats. Owing to the mutilated state of the body it was only identified by means of a medal which Miss Hickman won in a swimming competition and by her ambulance cross.

MORELEY IS BACK
IN POLITICS AGAIN

The Famous Statesman Back in the Arena as Champion of Free Trade Once More.

London, Oct. 20.—John Morley, who has been in semi-retirement while writing his "Life of Gladstone," returned to active political life tonight, and took his place in the fighting line against the protectionist policy of the present government.

In the free trade hall at Manchester Mr. Morley aroused immense enthusiasm by an eloquent and spirited attack on the new policy, against which he declared he was supported by the whole weight of economic authority, both practical and theoretical. So crude, raw and unthought-out were the tariff proposals that men of all parties were united in opposing them.

The country had been invited to put its ancestors, like Cobden, Bright and Peel, up to cheap auction, when he saw how his history had vindicated the position Cobden and Bright took over free trade, the French treaty of 1860, the Crimean war and the American war, he was not going to apologize for them.

JUDGE WILL NOT CALL
FARMERS FROM FIELD

Considers Gathering of Crops of More Benefit to Community Than Adjustment of Petty Quarrels.

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 20.—Judge C. W. Smith has set a new precedent at Stockton by adjourning court so that the farmers might save their crops. He presides over a district in the great corn and wheat belt in north-west Kansas, and said from the bench that the saving of a year's earnings was of greater importance to the people than the adjudication of a few petty suits. "The great majority of people in my district," he added, "are at peace with the world and struggling to save the great crops of the year. I shall not take these men from their harvest and their farms to sit in jury boxes to try the cases of a few who are quarrelling. When the crops are saved we will proceed to adjust these trivial matters."

SPECIAL SESSION

Roosevelt Calls the Talked of Meeting of Congress for November 9th—Is Not Expected To Be a Long
One—Many Important Matters To Come Up

(Special By Scripps-McInnes.)
Washington, Oct. 20.—President Roosevelt this morning issued the call for the extra session of congress to convene November 9th. Already many congressmen are in the city or on their way here and the work of making ready for the session is progressing rapidly. It is not thought that any great opposition will arise to the following out of the president's wishes as regards the matters of importance that will come up for discussion. Just what President Roosevelt will recommend in his message is not known but it is thought the canal and Cuban question will be the most important question brought up. Currency may and may not be acted upon but it is doubtful if any definite steps are taken in this direction at the coming session. This matter will be left for the regular session. The postal scandals will also come in for discussion and radical steps may be looked for in this direction. Action may be taken upon the law regarding the protection of the president and cabinet officers from the fear of the assassins may be brought up, owing to the fact of the two cranks who were arrested in the White House recently while trying to gain an audience with the president. The canal question will probably take up the principal portion of the session's time. Just what plan Roosevelt will favor is not known but radicals say that he would build the canal at once with no reference to Columbia at all on the grounds of an old treaty which is still in existence. It is said that Senator Spooner of Wisconsin has been called suddenly to Washington for a conference. The proclamation reads in part as follows: "Whereas by the resolution of the senate of March 19th, 1903, and the approval by congress of the reciprocal commercial convention between the United States and the republic of Cuba, signed at Havana Dec. 11th, 1902, is necessary before said convention shall take effect and whereas it is important to the public interests of the United States that the said convention shall be operative as early as may be possible: Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim that an extraordinary occasion requires the convening of both of the houses of congress Nov. 9 at noon to the end that they may consider and determine whether the approval of congress shall be given to said convention."

PRESIDENT DENIES ANY FRICTION
IN THE CABINET.

REFUTES FALSE STATEMENT

Account Was Spread Broadcast for Political Reasons by Anti-Administration Papers.

(Special By Scripps-McInnes.)
Washington, Oct. 20.—President Roosevelt has come out with a decided statement of denial of the statement which has appeared in anti-administration papers to the effect that Secretary Shaw and Secretary Payne were about to resign from the cabinet owing to discord existing. The story was printed broadcast throughout the country and is characterized by the president as being a fabrication. "The statement that Payne was to resign the postmastership owing to the postal scandals, he says, is absurd and also the statement credited to Secretary Shaw that he would leave the cabinet if Comptroller Tracewell was removed is also stated to be false. The president is much disturbed over the circulation of the reports and wishes them corrected. He states that no difficulty has arisen in his cabinet."

FIVE PUMPS WILL WORK TOMORROW

Capacity of Machines at Ford Mill
Is Equal to City's Water Power.

The motor for the fifth pump at the Janesville power plant at the upper dam is being set up today. Two transformers to be used in connection with it were unpacked this morning and put in place. As soon as the last pump is started it is believed that the water can be taken care of and the work will be vigorously prosecuted until it is completed.

It has been figured that the total power of the pumps now in use at the cofferdam is equal to the power of the Janesville water company's pump. When all are going there is a stream of water 34 inches in diameter being forced from the excavations under a high pressure. There are two pumps throwing six-inch streams, one ten, one three and one eight and a half.

SAYS HE CANNOT GET THERE

Robert M. Wilson Won't Walk to Al-

Robert M. Wilson who started out in the interest of the Oaks Magazine intending to walk to Alaska, has given up the trip and returned home. He is now in Rockford and will take up his trade, that of printer, in the Forest City. Wilson passed through this city on his long walk last August and wrote daily letters to the periodical, telling of his experiences. He now claims that the trip as planned was impractical.

Rome, Oct. 20.—Relatives of the pope have announced that his holiness has made it understood that he wishes to abandon the seclusion of the vatican and would go about the streets as do the cardinals. The question may cause comment on the part of many of the cardinals, but will probably be officially announced at the coming consistory.

AMERICA WINS
THE CONFERENCE

CANADA DOES NOT LIKE ALAS-KAN AWARD FINDINGS.

GETS THE PORTLAND CANAL

The United States Wins All the Other
Disputed Points—Made Public Today.

(Special By Scripps-McInnes.)
London, Oct. 20.—The final findings of the Alaskan treaty have been made this morning and are nearly identical with the announcement of the possible findings announced last Thursday by a London paper. The minor differences are that England secures a few more concessions than had been thought. The announcement is that Canada gets the Portland canal and the islands of Wales and Learce, and America secures the rest of the disputed territory. It is a decided victory for the American diplomats and although the Canadian press is very sarcastic about the result the English cabinet will doubtless approve of the action. London papers have much to say about the cementing of the two countries by a bond that will mean diplomacy not war will result in the future when disputes arise.

STRIKE TROUBLE
FOR FAIR FRANCE

Linen Workers Are Still Obstinate
About Making a Settlement with Owners.

Amentieres, France, Oct. 20.—By an overwhelming majority the linen strikers today voted by referendum to continue the strike in spite of the agreement to their employers' not to reduce wages for a day of ten hours' work. Although no further serious outbreak has yet occurred, the strike causes considerable apprehension owing to the menacing, almost revolutionary attitude of the workers. The authorities are taking precautions to prevent a renewal of the outrages. It is feared that the decisions of the strikers not to return to work will lead to strikes at other points in the north of France, resulting possibly in a general strike.

NIGHT WATCHMAN WAS SHOCKED

Finger Badly Burned While Repairing
Switchboard—Superintendent Has Strained Back.

John Riley, night watchman at the main power plant of the Janesville Electric company, was shocked and seriously burned while repairing the Fulton switchboard at eight o'clock last evening. The wires from the power up at Fulton run into the switchboard at the plant on South Silver street and it was while making some changes in the board that his finger came in contact with a connection and the current passed through his body. The shock was so severe that Riley was laid out for over an hour. His finger is badly burned as a result of the accident. Griffith on Sick List
Dick Griffith, superintendent of construction at the Ford mill was obliged to stop work yesterday because of his back troubling him. It is thought that in doing some heavy lifting several days ago the muscles became strained. He will be unable to resume his duties for some days at least, and a substitute has been procured.

MAN AND WOMAN LOST
IN ARIZONA LAVA BEDS

Experience May Prove Serious for the Latter, as She Has Been Ill for Some Time.

Flagstaff, Ariz., Oct. 22.—Lost in the wide lava beds twenty miles northeast of here, Miss Mabel Brown of Chicago and Leo Yorkamp of Flagstaff wandered fifty miles from their course, searched their friends into sending out a searching party, and were found at a ranch. Miss Brown was suffering from exposure and thirst, and the experience may yet end seriously for her, as she had been ill. The wanderers became separated from their rescuing party at Sunset Crater, in the lava beds.

The party was made up for a trip to Sunset Crater in honor of Miss Brown, who is visiting her brother, head bookkeeper for the Arizona Lumber and Timber Company of this place.

THE CONFERENCE

Meeting of the World's Evangelists.

Berlin, Oct. 20.—A spirited canvass is on at the world's evangelical conference for the convention in 1907. Chicago and Oregon are both pressing their claims hard. A recommendation that the limit of a preacher's stay with one congregation be changed from four to five years came up this afternoon. The European delegates favored it and the Northwest opposed. No conclusion was reached. The church discipline rules were amended to empower the preacher in charge to call a meeting of the trustees.

LURE MINERS
FROM ABROAD

Welch Colliers Are Held in Philadelphia Pending Investigation of Irregularities.

MEN UNDER LAWS

It Is Claimed They Were Brought to This Country Under Contract to Work.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Evidence has been collected by the bureau of immigration, department of commerce and labor, of a systematic and extensive violation of the contract labor law. Commissioner General F. P. Sargent has submitted the evidence to the department of justice and has requested the attorney general to institute proceedings.

The case in hand involves hundreds of men, many of whom already are in this country. Others are en route to the United States. A number of men who arrived in Philadelphia on the steamer Haverford are being detained as contract laborers, and many others are expected on a steamer due at New York in a day or two.

Come Under Contract.

The men are Welsh coal miners and came to the United States under an alleged agreement to work for the Ellsworth Coal company of Ellsworth, Pa. They were induced to come to this country by a firm of Pontypridd, South Wales.

The situation of some of the imported miners is serious. Many of them have requested the bureau of immigration to send them back to Wales, as, they say, the agreement under which they came here has not been kept.

Miners Cause Detention.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 20.—Twenty-eight persons, one of them a woman, comprise the party of Welsh miners detained in this city. The entire party is quartered at the International hotel, near the American line piers. Officers of the United Mine Workers of America, representatives of which organization are now here, are largely responsible for the detention of the party. Miners employed at Ellsworth and other sections of western Pennsylvania are said to have first discovered the importation of Welsh miners and notified the officers of their union, who in turn gave their information to the government.

Promise Good Wages.

Several of the detained miners assert that hundreds of men, lured on by the promise of good wages, have already gone to the soft coal fields, and that more are on their way to this country.

According to the report of Special Inspector Burche, whom the miners went to the office of Jones Bros. they were shown photographs of the surface of the Ellsworth collieries, the Ellsworth National bank, the general stores in the place, and similar views of a mining town. They were also told that the place was in the "garden of America," and extracts of letters were read to them from other miners, who said the wages were high and the places fine ones.

Each one received from Jones Bros. a ticket addressed to H. J. Miller, manager for the Ellsworth Mining company, countersigned with a rubber stamp, with the name of Jones Bros. Some of the men were supplied with letters addressed to Miller.

Makes Denial.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 20.—J. W. Ellsworth, president of the Ellsworth Coal company, which is accused of importing Welsh miners to work at Ellsworth, Pa., makes an emphatic denial that either he or his company had made any arrangement with foreign miners or their agents to that end. "This report," said Mr. Ellsworth, "is absolutely false. I think, however, that I can throw some light on its origin. Some of our men probably wrote their friends that they could secure jobs on this side and volunteered to help them. We have all the men we want, and we have no need of importing men."

SUP'T HEMMINGWAY INSPECTS SCHOOLS

A THOROUGH SYSTEM TO RAISE STANDARD IN RURAL DISTRICTS.

HE IS DOING A GOOD WORK

His Plan in Detail—Makes More Than the Required Number of Visits.

One of the busiest men in the city at present is C. H. Hemmingway, county superintendent of schools, who returned last evening from over six weeks consecutive school visitation. He expects that it will take him another month to finish inspecting the rural schools, not including the city, village and state graded schools in his district.

The Best Method Desired. In response to the question "Is it customary for the superintendent to complete his tour of inspection so soon after schools commenced?" He replied that it was not, that it was generally scattered over a large part of the year, which made it much easier for the superintendent. He was prompted to do it, however, because he wished to try a new plan. By an early visitation, the superintendent can see how the work starts off, and if it is unsatisfactory, can change it before it is too late. There is no good reason for a teacher or school board for not making changes if they are asked for at the beginning of the year, while if their attention is not called to it until later in the year, they may plead that it is hardly worth while to make a change so late in the course. It is to take advantage of these people that the early visitation is being carried out by Prof. Hemmingway. Again, a large per cent of the teachers this year are beginners and in the opinion of the superintendent, an early visit to them would be of more benefit than a later one. If they need help at all, it is in the beginning.

Held Meetings. In order to increase the efficiency of his inspection Mr. Hemmingway has introduced another new feature. After the inspection of a school, the teacher's attention is called to the particular weaknesses of her work, while the general ones are made a subject for discussion at a meeting of the teachers whose work has been inspected, the township being the unit. Two such meetings were held by Supt. Hemmingway Saturday evening last, one being in district No. 3, Newark and the other in joint district No. 1, Spring Valley. Similar meetings will be held the 15th and 24th inst. He states that his inspection discloses three kinds of teachers—those who know how to do good work and who are doing it, those who do not do good work for the lack of knowledge of how to do it, but are anxious to do better, and those who are too lazy to do even as well as they know. It is hoped that these meetings will encourage the first to continue, aid the second in bettering their instruction; and third, "They are hopeless," said Mr. Hemmingway. The best that can be done with them according to his plan is to locate them and then turn them out and give the field to capable ones. The pupils' time and the parents' money should not be wasted by hiring such people. Nothing in the line of a teachers' meeting or institute can help them, for they rarely come. They need no help. Of course this last class is in the minority, but still they are to be found in every town and city.

Later Inspection. While a single visit a year satisfies the law, it does not the inspector and he is anxious to weed out the incompetents, hence a second and third inspection. In some cases at least will be made later on in the year. An early inspection will reveal those who are violating the compulsory education law and plans can be made accordingly, to the end the rural pupils may attend the required five months. It also gives the superintendent an opportunity to see whether his recommendations in regard to building and repairing have been carried out or not. It is a curious fact that many districts refuse to put their school houses in fairly decent shape until forced to do so by the local member of the county board and the superintendent yet such is the case in altogether too many districts. The thorough work now being carried on by Superintendent Hemmingway will go far towards raising the standard of the schools under his care.

WAR ON CARP IS COMMENCED

C. K. Free, of Sandusky, To Pay Expenses of Work at Koshkonong—Net a Mile Long.

The fish and game warden has made a contract with C. K. Free of Sandusky, Ohio, to clean the carp out of the Wisconsin lakes and work was to be commenced at Koshkonong yesterday. A seine nearly a mile long had been provided for the purpose. After the work there is finished the Madison lakes will be visited.

Other Fish Doomed. Besides the carp, it has been decided that the bluish and dogfish must go. Of the three, however, the carp is deemed the greatest enemy of the sportsmen as he is charged with burrowing and destroying the spawn of other fish.

Carp Go to New York. Mr. Free will pay the salary and expenses of the wardens in supervising the work and also $1 a ton for the carp. The latter will be put in boxes alive and shipped to New York while the garfish and dogfish will be killed and buried. It is expected that three carloads of carp will be shipped out each week.

from 14 to 16 feet wide. The four-inch mesh will permit the escape of smaller fish. No game-fish will be injured as the net will be cleaned out at a depth of two or three feet.

Peaches, per doz., 30c. Numerous table delicacies are still abundant on the market as seen by the above tables. The prices were procured from several prominent grocers. In another month the Janesville dealers will receive the larger shipments of apples as they command a big trade that buys them by the barrel. Home grown apples will be slightly scarcer this year, but the general supply is thought to be abundant. The quality of grapes this year is excellent and they can be had for reasonable figures. Concord and California grapes are still plentiful. Home grown red cabbage from which the good old German sauer kraut is made, are selling for five cents per head. The buyers for the household need have no fear for a scarcity of cranberries for the Thanksgiving turkey this year. At present they are selling for ten cents per quart.

DEER WILL BE MORE PLENTIFUL

Encouraging Reports From Northern Wisconsin—Season Four Weeks Away

Reports from the northern part of the state are to the effect that deer are unusually plentiful this year. Prospects for hunting this year will be good. One month from now will mark the commencement of the annual pilgrimage of pilgrims to the northern woods in search of deer. Of course there will be many hunters on the ground when the season opens in order to try their skill with the rifle before the deer have been frightened by the sounds of shot after shot ringing through the forest and across the small clearings, but many will prefer to wait until there has been a light fall of snow in order that the animals might be tracked readily. Every hunter who makes it a point to visit the woods each year has a favorite haunt, and they are scattered over northern Wisconsin and Michigan. Janesville sportsmen will, as usual, be well represented on the hunting grounds.

"A COUNTRY KID" AT MYERS GRAND

Only a Small Audience Greeted the Pastoral Drama, Last Night.

Only a meager audience greeted the production of "A Country Kid" at the Myers Grand last evening. The comedy-drama boasts of a superlatively wicked villain, a tramp who is something of a ventriloquist, a rather attractive little country girl called "Sis," and the "Country Kid." A. J. Hicks plays the latter role and portrays a character half idiotic and awkward; at times tiresome, but frequently amusing. The play will meet with better success in the smaller towns.

COUNTY BILLS ARE SOON DUE

County Clerk Starr Getting in an Extra Supply of Forms.

County Clerk Starr is getting in a fresh supply of blanks that there may be no shortage before the many bills against the county are made out and handed in, which must be before the meeting of the county board on November 10th. Accounts against the county must be in five days before the meeting of the board. There will be municipal court bills, Justice bills, office and sheriff's accounts. Besides these there are bills from several outside county institutions.

Preparing Claims: The circus claims were again aired when depositions of the witnesses were made before Justice Earle last Saturday by Stanley Tallman, Fethers and Jeffris, as the lawyers are preparing the claims for trial in the November term of the circuit court.

STRANGE SIGHTS REALLY VIEWED

PORTIONS OF BELLOIT SHUT OFF FROM COMMUNICATION.

A LACK OF MUNICIPAL PRIDE

Residents of Edgewater and Twin Oaks Forced to Come to Janesville to Trade.

Just now when Beloit should be using every effort to regain her reputation of a few months ago, as an active energetic little city, it seems unfortunate that personal spite and jealousy, on the part of a few in power, should be thrown as stumbling blocks in front of enterprising citizens who are endeavoring to enhance the value of their property and thus swell the city's tax roll. How fitting are the words of the Great Master, "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you."

"I realized the force of this text when a day or two ago I went to Beloit over the electric line to visit friends in Twin Oaks, an addition in the northern part of the city one mile from the post office and over one-half mile inside the city limits. Alighting from the electric car I could see the beautiful home of my friends a few yards distant, but I had not proceeded many feet before I was confronted by a barb wire fence which barred, as I thought, the only avenue to my destination. This was the North-Western tracks and fifty feet from me behind another wire fence stood my discomfited friends. Being an old man whom time and rheumatism has somewhat stiffened I decided not to trust to the ridiculous position of rolling into my friend's home, or to the embarrassment of being ushered into their presence with torn coat and trousers, but to accept the inevitable alternative, and walk eight blocks to get one hundred feet. I walked south two blocks on the electric car tracks to North St. west on North St. two blocks to Sixth St., north on Sixth St. three blocks to Maple Ave., thence one block on Maple Avenue to within one hundred feet of place of beginning, or to the home of my friends, who received me in my almost exhausted condition for I must add that in all the eight blocks traveled there was no sidewalk and I had waded in sand up to my boot tops of forced artificial lakes and canals. Yet this was far famed "Beautiful Beloit" (?) renowned for her public spirited and influential "Leaders." How different you appear to the unprejudiced eye of the traveling public, or to the neighboring cities, who by means of the X-Ray of reason are able to penetrate through the padded pompous cloak of egotism and view the skeleton of ignorance, jealousy and avarice which is checking the growth of an otherwise prosperous and flourishing little city.

I found Edgewater and Twin Oaks two beautiful additions which for natural advantages and scenery any city might well be proud. The owners were public spirited and progressive and ready to do all they could to the advancement of the town. Their land is beautifully platted, and the streets have been dedicated and accepted by the city as shown by the official map. The owner of Twin Oaks has spent several hundred dollars in building a bridge and putting in filling north of the same at the extension of 4th St., with the promise of the city that a crossing would be made over the North-Western tracks connecting Maple Ave. and Fourth Street. There by giving the residents of the northern part of the city access to the electric line and a direct route down to the business portion. The following quotation taken from a communication relating to this matter recently sent to the city council shows their true condition.

"Up to a few weeks ago it was the blessed privilege of the residents of Edgewater and Twin Oaks addition to crawl under or over fences across the North-Western railroad tracks, but now even that has been denied them and they must be content to watch from their doors the electric car whiz past almost in speaking distance, 'so near and yet so far' and then turn and walk six blocks out of their way to get to their place of business or work. Yet such is the fact today, and it is no wonder they become restless, even in this Garden of Eden, and long for a way out. On the 3rd of November 1902, your honorable body instructed the City Attorney to take the necessary steps to provide a crossing connecting Maple Ave. and Fourth St. We have never seen a record in the minutes of your meetings where such an act has been successfully rescinded, or do we think it is your wish. With the assurance of this crossing many houses have been built and house money in circulation among the business people. If any doubt this build a house at once; therefore the more houses that are built the more prosperous is our city, and we can not afford as in the present case to retard its growth. Only the other day it came to my ears that a well known and enterprising citizen who owns property in one of these additions would not build unless the crossing was opened. Weigh this carefully. Can we afford to lose a single good energetic citizen? And can we as business men send money out of our city? These are questions well worthy of a little thought. We only ask the city to extend a helping hand and join with those property owners immediately interested and make of our city one to rank first among its neighbors.

It is written "Ask and ye shall receive." We feel that an appropriation to help the property owners in filling in the holes and grading is just and would ask a careful consideration in regard to the same."

Further conversation with my friends developed the fact that several families in these additions together with their friends and sympathizers had pledged themselves to do all of their trading in one of the adjoining cities unless immediate steps were taken by the city officials to open the crossing in question. I urged them to view the many advantages which Janesville could offer and her readiness to extend a courteous hand to patrons from other cities. I gave the names of some of Janesville's most prominent business houses and assuring them that in coming to Janesville they would find no public thoroughfares blocked with barb wire fences, I returned home well pleased with my residence in the Bower city.

WITH LINK AND PIN, Men.

A. J. Gibbons, bill clerk at the North-Western freight depot, has received a very interesting letter from Fireman Clyde Turnbull who, with Frank Hagen, left for an extended trip to Texas a few weeks ago. The trip to Houston is described in an interesting manner. The travelers passed through Kansas City, Topeka, Guthrie, Oklahoma and numerous smaller towns. In Oklahoma they saw field after field of alfalfa, which looks like clover and is harvested four times a year. They were impressed with the progressiveness of small towns they visited—some having less than four hundred inhabitants being fully equipped with electric light, water, and ice plants. The rocky country of Indian territory offered an agreeable variety of scenery. The soil and streams are described as being bright red in color.

In Texas they saw many cotton fields and presses and further south they saw numerous cotton seed oil factories. At Fort Worth a merchant's carnival was in progress and the Forepaugh Sells circus had pitched its tents the day they arrived. They visited the $500,000 court house of red granite, the finest in Texas. Mr. Turnbull comments on the beautiful depots there. Locomotives that carry their train into Texas was an old burner. The fireman has merely to sit and regulate the flow of oil with a valve. There is no dust or smoke and the mechanism works to perfection. Wages in Texas are good. Clerks in stores get from $18 to $25 a week and operators for railways get $75 a month as a minimum. Dispatchers in offices get $125. The two Janesville men are rooming in a private house at Houston. Their address is 1314 Texas avenue.

The Beloit Iron works last week sent out 18 cars of paper-mill machinery to the Thames Paper Co. of London, England. The consignment weighed nearly a million pounds and was shipped over the North-Western.

A large new dynamo for the Electric Light Co. arrived this morning. Machinist Gordon Erickson has returned from a trip to his old home in Kaukauna. While there he picked some large size peaches which seemed to be flourishing in the rigorous climate of the north.

Clerk I. T. Matthews went to Harvard today.

Engineer A. H. Shakey of the north Wisconsin division went to Koshkonong today.

Fireman Eathingier came from Harvard yesterday to take the Barrington run.

James Gardner and Frank Sullivan commenced the work of whitewashing the interior of the round-house today. The work is being done with a pump and hose.

Conductor C. S. Wheaton is relieving Conductor Tucker on the Minnesota time-freight.

St. Paul Road. Fireman Albert Boltz of the Mineral Point division is laying off on account of illness.

The position of third man on the way-freight is ordered discontinued by a bulletin at the office this morning.

Train 140 will stop at Armsby for Chicago passengers on signal hereafter.

The Wisconsin Central earnings for the second week in October were $133,500, an increase of $1,000 over last year. Since July 1 the earnings have been $2,103,750, an increase of $114,950 over the same period in 1902.

President H. F. Whitcomb of the Wisconsin Central road yesterday denied that the road will build a cut-off from Spencer to Boyd, Wis., or that any other improvements are planned for the present.

Residents on the northern division of the St. Paul road are discussing the question of better train service and efforts are being made to secure restoration of a Sunday train.

The annual report of the Burlington road, just issued, shows gross earnings of $42,782,495, an increase of $8,842,134. Net earnings show an increase of $3,983,538.

Three Color Printing...

The beautiful color plates you notice in the magazines and printed matter of various sorts are certainly as near art as any produced in the printing line. The work has the appearance of being difficult to perform—and this is true—yet the Printing Department of the Gazette is producing some of this 3 color plate printing in an equal manner with the best printing plants in the cities.

The explanation of the process is very interesting and the work itself is worth the time of those who watch the development of the printers art. Chas. L. Mohr, Superintendent of the Gazette Dept. of Printing will be pleased to explain all about fine printing to those interested.

COUNTY NEWS

MILTON

Milton, Oct. 20.—Milton 5, Beloit 0. The football game between Milton college and Beloit Academy on Thursday was a hard fought game from start to finish. Beloit had a strong line, but our backs were stronger than theirs. The features of the game was the drop kick for goal from the 25 yard line by Risdon, which won the game for Milton. Milton's line men deserve special mention for holding Beloit for downs on their five yard line. Robinson's work as full back was good. Rogers as half back played an excellent game, making a good gain with the ball each time he carried it. THE CITY WORK.

That crushed stone is needed as badly for street repairs as for newly macadamized streets is very apparent to the most casual observer. Just why this class of material is not furnished, when the city owns a $10,000 plant, and is paying rent for a quarry, is a problem not easily solved.

The indifference of the council, in this matter, can only be accounted for in the fact that the memory of the stone crusher, and its relations to the former council, is like a night mare. This kind of timidity may be natural, but it is not commendable.

While it is true that crushed stone, under the old reign, was a luxury, it does not follow that the same conditions would prevail under a business administration.

The city of Kankakee, Ill., had a similar experience to Janesville, two or three years ago. A crusher plant was being manipulated by officials who were reckless in management, and the tax payers became so disgusted that they advocated selling the outfit and buying material outside. A reform council was elected, and a new street commissioner placed in charge. The Kankakee Gazette, conducted by Mr. Holt, formerly of Janesville, published the following article, which is well worth reading, as it shows what can be done with a quarry under efficient management.

It is becoming quite evident to all who have given the matter any attention that there never has been a time in the history of the city, and especially since the city quarry has been opened that so much and such good work has been done on the streets and at the quarry as is the case at the present time, and at such a trifling expense to the taxpayers.

When the street department was at work on East Court street, where there was a long haul, Mr. Krueger kept pushing the crusher, with the result that the plant was turning out about 125 yards of crushed stone per day. This was considered remarkably good work. Under the Magruder administration that has preceded the present one, from 74 to 80 yards per day was considered a good day's work. Teams never hurried, either going or coming to or from the quarry, and it simply a picnic for the quarrymen to get out the day's run.

Supt. Krueger noticed that it did not seem to hustle the crusher much to get out 125 yards a day, so when it came to work on Schuyler avenue, and the haul was short, he told the quarrymen they must hustle and keep the teams going, as he could not have them waiting around for work. The result was the men in the quarry hustled, and the crusher turned out during the week on an average of 175 to 180 yards of crushed stone per day.

This was rather a startler to Mr. Krueger, but he concluded if this could be done one week, it could another, so when it came to the long haul again he put on another team, and kept the crusher up to its average.

Last Saturday night the manager of the quarry asked if he was going to keep up this gait right along. "You can get out that amount of stone can't you?" Inquired Mr. Krueger. The man replied yes, but it was hard work. The superintendent of streets replied that was the way he wanted them to work, and he should keep up the pace.

Look at the difference in the business management between this and the Magruder administration and how much better for the taxpayers.

A check is kept on every team, and one is required to haul as much as the other, and for this reason the almost unexampled thing of a team at work for the city trotting on the street has been quite a frequent sight the present year. Mr. Krueger was asked what he cost would be to the city per yard for crushing this stone, and he replied he thought about 20c to 25c per yard, nearer the former than the latter figure. Under the Magruder administration the cost was estimated to be about 75c per yard and we have known it when the cost per yard at the end of the season was put at about $1.19 per yard, and these figures are given as a reason why the city should shut down the crusher and buy stone of the quarry crushers, paying anywhere from 70c to 80c per yard for it.

The Janesville crusher should be started without delay. If Kankakee can furnish stone at 25c per yard, it can be duplicated in the Bower City, and the streets are suffering for this class of material.

A PERFECT PATENT

While thousands of patented articles never see the light of day, and are only a disappointment to inventors who frequently fail, after spending years to perfect them, it sometimes happens that a patented article meets all the requirements, and is so near perfect that no effort is made to improve it. This is true of many things that are now in daily use.

Among this class of patents is the glove fastener, and the Woodruff buckle. The price of the latter dropped from $1 to 40c per dozen, when the patent expired, and now is manufactured by any Malleable Iron House that cares to make it, and sold by the pound. It is so near perfect that it defies all competitors.

The "U-Pin-It" Hook and Eye, has the appearance of belonging to this class of patents. Every objection urged against it, has been successfully met, and it commends itself so thoroughly, that it should become a household article in every home.

As soon as it is placed on the market. This class of patents always make a fortune for some one, before the patent expires, and there is several fortunes in "U-Pin-It" Hook and Eye if the test of time proves it to be a perfect patent. The Gazette believes that the goods will stand the test, and that the little article invented by Mr. Mills, is destined to become famous.

HUBBARD GAVE DINNER FRIDAY

Former Janesville Residents Celebrate—Married 25 Years—
Daughter's Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. George N. Hubbard, formerly of this city and now residing in Milwaukee celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at their home last Friday evening, the affair being an informal dinner. During the evening the engagement of their daughter, Miss Nellie Hubbard to Mr. James J. Ward was announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard will be remembered by hosts of friends in Janesville who have partaken of their hospitality and friendliness. Mr. Hubbard was in the cigar business and the couple made the Bower City their home for many years, leaving for the Cream City about a year ago.

Mr. Hubbard was prominent in labor and lodge circles in this city and made many friends both in a business and social way. Mrs. Hubbard, likewise had many friends and acquaintances and was a charming hostess. Miss Nellie Hubbard spent her girlhood days here and her departure was much regretted in the younger social set. She attended the city schools and was a graduate of the high school.

A number of the Hubbards' friends in Milwaukee were present at the dinner last Friday which was a delightful affair. The rooms and tables were tastefully decorated and the affair was much enjoyed by those present. The Hubbards received the many congratulations of their friends on their successful anniversary. During the dinner, proceeding the toasts, Mr. Hubbard announced their daughter's engagement and the news will be received with much interest in this city.

SYNOPSIS.

PART I.—Three rogues, Hayle, Kiltwater and Codd, meet at Singapore. Latter two have learned of existence of hidden treasure at Sengkor-Wat—old Burmese ruin near Chinese border. Hayle only half believes account, but nevertheless agrees to join in search.

PART II.—Reaching Sengkor-Wat, the men make their way through the ancient streets and toward the once splendid palace. Toward dusk of a most tedious search they come upon secret entrance to underground vaults, in which are discovered great quantities of bar gold and uncut rubies and sapphires. Hayle fills both hands with gems and the men make their way outside again. On reaching camp they find their two Burmese servants slain and horribly mutilated, Chinese treasure and the night Hayle finds his treasure and steals away into the jungle.

PART III.—Utterly exhausted and unconscious, Hayle is found by English officers near frontier station of Nampoung. As soon as he is able he leaves for Hongkong and thence to England.

PART IV.—Two months later another officer at Nampoung, while out on a hunt comes across Kiltwater and Codd. Kiltwater explains they were traders who had been driven into the hills by Chinese who had put out his own eyes and pulled out Codd's tongue. After recovering somewhat from effects of exposure and tortures they set off in pursuit of Hayle.

CHAPTER I.—George Fairfax relates how he became a detective in Australia and finally came to open up an office in London.

CHAPTER II.—Kiltwater and Codd try to secure Fairfax's services. They represent themselves as missionaries returned from China where the rich native patron had died over the death of a great fortune which was stolen by a guest (Hayle) at the mission. Fairfax almost concludes not to take case.

CHAPTER III.—Miss Kiltwater calls on Fairfax in behalf of her uncle and succeeds in persuading him to take up the work. Later in the day a stranger, who calls himself Edward Hayle, of the Santa Cruz Mining company, comes to see Fairfax to go to Argentina to shadow mine manager who is suspected of embezzlement. Detective replies he now has case on which will engage him for some time. Fairfax at a leading jeweler's learns that 21 unusually large uncut stones have there just been received, and gets description of man of whom they were bought.

CHAPTER IV.—One evening Fairfax finds himself followed by two ruffians, but manages to elude them. Suspecting they will repeat performance he goes forth the next night, but is again followed. This time he is indeed followed. Finding that he is in a dark street and turns about and confronts ruffians who come they have been hired to brain him. Finding where they were to meet their principal, detective goes in their place to keep appointment. He conceals himself and much surprised to see that the approach of the man.

CHAPTER V.—From the managing director of the Santa Cruz Mining company Fairfax learns there is no Hayle in their employ. The director, however, remembers a former clerk who answers to the description given by the detective; his name was Gideon Hayle. That same day by accident Fairfax almost comes upon Hayle, but the latter escapes into a cab. Fairfax follows in close pursuit. After a long chase the forward cab comes to a stop, but it is empty.

CHAPTER VI.—After many persistent inquiries Fairfax locates Hayle in Foxwell's hotel, but misses finding him in by only a few minutes. Subordinate detectives are located at the various stations, and one of them, Dickson, manages to trace Hayle to Paris.

CHAPTER VII.—Fairfax takes advantage of necessary delay to spend Sunday at the Kiltwater home, and becomes very much impressed with the charms of Miss Kiltwater. He learns that it is the woman whom Kiltwater is drawing for funds for the pursuit of Hayle.

CHAPTER VIII.—In Paris Fairfax enlists cooperation of Legation of Legation, French detective, through whose aid he discovers whereabouts of Hayle. Much to the surprise of Fairfax Hayle presents himself.

and the church bells sounding across the meadows, calling the villagers to evensong. How much better it was, I argued, to be standing talking to her there in that old world peace, than to be dressing for a dinner at an up-to-date French restaurant. My toilet completed, I descended to the street, hired a fiacre, and drove to the restaurant where I had arranged to meet my friend. The place in question is neither an expensive nor a fashionable one. It has no halls of mirrors, no dainty little cabinets, but, to my thinking, you can obtain the best dinner in all Paris there. On reaching it I found my guest had been the first to arrive. We accordingly ascended the stairs to the room above, where we selected our table and sat down. My companion was a witty little man with half the languages of Europe on his tongue, and a knowledge of all the tricks and dodges of all the criminal fraternity at his finger-ends. He has since written a book on his experiences, and a stranger volume, or one more replete with a knowledge of the darker side of human nature it would be difficult to find. He had commenced his professional career as a doctor, and like myself had gradually drifted into the detective profession. Among other things he was an imitable hand at disguising himself, as many a wretched criminal now knows to his cost. Even I, who know him so well, have been taken in by him. I have given him to a blind beggar in the streets, have encountered him as a chiffonier prowling about the gutters, have sat next to him on an omnibus when he has been clothed as an artisan in a blue blouse, and on not one of those occasions have I ever recognized him until he made himself known to me. Among other things he was a decided epicure, and loved a good dinner as well as any of his compatriots. Could you but see him with his napkin tucked under his chin, his little twinkling eyes sparkling with mirth, and his face wreathed in smiles, you would declare him to be one of the jolliest-looking individuals you have ever encountered. See him, however, when he is on business and has a knotty problem to solve, and you will find a different man. The mouth has become one of iron, the eyes are as fierce as feline can be. Some one, I remember, likened him to the great Napoleon, and the description is an exceedingly apt one.

"By the way," I said, as we took a peep into our second bottle of Perrier-Juget. "There is a question, I want to put to you. Do you happen to be acquainted with a certain Mme. Beaumaraiz?"

"I have known her for more years than she or I would care to remember," he answered. "For a woman who has led the life she has, she wears uncommonly well. A beautiful creature! The very finest shoulders in all Paris, and that is saying something."

He blew a kiss off the tips of his fingers, and raised his glass in her honor.

"I drink to her in this noble wine, but I do not let her touch my money. Oh, no, la belle Louise is a clever woman, a very clever woman, but money trickles through her fingers like water through a sieve. Let me think for a moment. She ruined Marquis D'Esmau, the Vicomte Gouffart, M. D'Armer and many others whose names I cannot now recall. The first is with our noble troops in Cochinchina, the second is in Algeria, and the third I know not where, and now I have learnt since my arrival in Paris that she has got hold of a young Englishman, who is vastly wealthy. She will have all he has got very soon, and then he will begin the world anew. You are interested in that Englishman, of course?"

"How do you know that?"

"Because you question me about Mme. Beaumaraiz," he answered. "A good many people have asked me about her at different times, but it is always the man they want to get hold of. You, my astute Fairfax, are interested in the man, not because you want to save him from her, but because he has done a little something which he should not have done, elsewhere. The money he is lavishing on Mme. Louise, whence does it come? Should I be very wrong if I suggested gems?"

I gave a start of surprise. How on earth did he guess this?

"Yes! I see I'm right," he answered with a little laugh. "Well, I knew it a long time ago. Ah, you are astonished! You should surely never allow yourself to be surprised by anything. Now I will tell you how I came to know about the gems. Some time ago a certain well-known lady of this city lost her jewel-case in a mysterious manner. The affair was placed in my hands, and when I had exhausted Paris, I went to Amsterdam, en route if necessary for London. You know our old friends, Levenstein and Schartzler?"

I nodded. I had had dealings with that firm on many occasions.

"Well, as I went into their office, I saw the gentleman who has been paying attention to the lady we have been discussing, come out. I have an excellent memory for faces, and when I saw him to-night entering the Cafe des Ambassadeurs, I recognized him immediately. Thus the mystery is explained."

He shrugged his shoulders and spread his hands apart, like a conjurer who has just vanished a rabbit or an orange.

"Has the man of whom we are speaking done very wrong?" he inquired.

"The stones he sold in London and Amsterdam belonged to himself and his two partners," I answered. "He has not given them their share of the transaction. That is all."

"They had better be quick about it then, or they are not likely to get anything. It would be a very big sum that would tempt la belle Louise to be faithful for a long period. If your employers really desire to punish him, and they are not in want of money, I should say do not let them interfere. She will then nibble at what he has got like a mouse into a store of good things. Then presently that store will be all gone, and then she will give up, and he, the man, will go out and shoot himself, and she will pick up somebody else, and will begin to nibble just as before. As I say, there will be somebody else, and somebody else, right up to the end of the chapter. And with every one she will grow just an imperceptible bit older. By and by the wrinkles will appear; I fancy there are just one or two already. Then she will not be so fastidious about her hundred of thousands francs, and will condescend to think of mere thousands. After that it will come to simple hundreds. Then there will be an interval—after which a garret, a charcoal-brazier, and the morgue. I have known so many, and it is always the same. First, the diamonds, the champagne, the exquisite little dinners at the best restaurants, and at last the brazier, the closed doors and windows, and the cold stone slab. There is a moral in it, my dear friend, but we will not look for it to-night. When do you intend to commence business with your man?"

"At once," I answered. "He knows that I am after him, and my only fear is that he will make a bolt. I cannot understand why he is dallying in Paris so long."

"For the simple reason that he is confident he has put you off the scent," was my companion's reply. "He is doing the one foolish thing the criminal always does sooner or later; that is to say, he is becoming over-confident of his own powers to elude us. You and I, my friend, should be able to remember several such instances. Now, strange to say, I came across a curious one the other day. Would you care to hear it?"

He lit a cigarette and blew a cloud of smoke while he waited for my answer.

"Very much," I said, being well aware that his stories were always worth hearing.

"This is a somewhat remarkable case," he said. "I will mention no names, but doubtless you can read between the lines. There was a man who murdered his wife in order that he might marry another woman. The thought which he gave to it, and the clever manner in which he laid his plans, not only for the murder but also for the disposal of the body, marked him as a criminal in the possession of a singularly brilliant intellect. He gave no hint to anybody, but left the country without leaving the faintest clue concerning his destination behind him. I was called in to talk over the case, but after some consideration could make nothing of it. I have no objection to admitting that I was completely baffled. Now it so happened that I discovered that the man's mother was of Irish extraction. He, believing that he would be safe on that island, engaged a passage on board a steamer from Havre to Belfast. She was to pick up at Southampton, Plymouth and Bristol, en route. My man, who, by the way, was a very presentable person, and could be distinctly sociable when he pleased, endeavored to make himself agreeable to the passengers on board. On the first evening out of port, the conversation turned upon the value of diamonds, and one of the ladies on board produced some costly stones she happened to have in her possession. The murderer, who, you must understand, was quite safe, was not happily eaten up with vanity. He could not forego the boast that he was the possessor of a magnificent ring, which had been given him by ex-Emperor Napoleon III. Needless to say this information excited considerable interest, and he was asked to produce it for the general edification.

"He declared that it was too late to do so that evening, but said that he would do so on the morrow, or, at any rate, before he left the vessel. In the excitement of reaching Southampton, the matter was for the moment forgotten, but on the day that they arrived in Plymouth one of the lady passengers reminded him of his promise. This was followed by another application. Thus surrounded, the unhappy man found himself in the unpleasant position of being discovered in the perpetration of an untruth, or of being compelled to invent some feasible tale in order to account for his not being able to produce the ring. It was at this juncture that he made his great mistake. Anxious doubtless to attract attention, he returned from his cabin with the astounding declaration that the ring had been forced, and the famous ring stolen from his trunk in which it had lain concealed. He certainly need his part well, but he did not realize to what consequence it would lead. The matter was reported to the police, and a search was made through the vessel. The passengers were naturally indignant at such treatment, and for the rest of the voyage the man found himself taking what you English call 'the cold shoulder.' He reached Belfast, made his way into the country, and presently settled down. Later on, when the pursuit had died down, it was his intention to ship for America, where he was to be joined by the woman, to obtain whom he had in the first place committed the crime. Now observe the result. Photographs of the missing man and of the murdered woman were circulated all through France, while not a few were sent to England. One of these pictures reached Plymouth, where it was shown to the officer who had investigated the case on the boat on its way to Ireland. He immediately recognized the man who had made the charge against his fellow-passengers. After that it was easy to trace him to Belfast and his hiding-place on land. Extradition was of course granted, and he left the place. Had he not imagined that in his safety he could indulge his vanities, I confidently believe I should never have found him. When you come to think of it, it is hard to come to the guillotine for a diamond that never existed, is it not?"

I agreed with him, and, then suggested that we should amuse ourselves by endeavoring to find out how the dinner at the Cafe des Ambassadeurs was progressing.

"They will proceed to a theater afterwards, you may be sure," my companion said. "In that case if you like we could catch a glimpse of them as they come out. What do you say?"

I answered that I had not the least objection.

"One night does not make much difference. To-morrow morning I shall make a point of meeting him face to face."

"Should you require any assistance then, I shall be most pleased to give it to you," my companion replied.

I thanked him for his offer, and then we left the restaurant together, hailed a cab, and drove to his flat. It consisted of four rooms situated at the top of a lofty block of buildings near the river. From his windows he could look over Paris, and he was wont to declare that the view he received in exchange was the most beautiful in the world. Fine as it was, I was scarcely so enthusiastic in my praise.

Lord Thurlow's Position.

A bishop once invited Lord Thurlow to hear him preach. "No," growled the savage old lord, who affected religion but little and bishops still less. "I hear enough of your d— nonsense in the house of lords, where I can answer you, and it's not likely I'm going to listen to it in church, where I can't."

CALENDAR AT MYERS GRAND

Oct. 20—Richard Carle in "The Tenderfoot."
Oct. 21—Entertainment by local talent, under auspices of G. A. R.
Oct. 27—Stetson's "Uncle Tom's Cabin."
Oct. 31—Andrew Robson in "Richard Carvel."

Richard Carle, the leading comedian, stage director and author of "The Tenderfoot" is really a most interesting character. Firstly he is but 23 year old, and is recognized as one of the foremost celebrities in the theatrical profession today. As much as he has acted in more musical successes, which he has staged and has written more songs, sketches and operatic hits than any other American before the public.

This statement is most unusual when one stops to consider that a man holding the position of stage director and leading player of an organization must not only be possessed of dignity, but a record of long years of experience in order to completely control of manage the people under him, and Mr. Carle's record plainly shows that his stage associates in the past have not only been people of varied experience but artists of distinction. The only solution of this statement is the fact that Mr. Carle is a natural born stage genius and always exemplifies his commands or directions by executing the same, either in gesture, voice pose or dance himself.

Mr. Carle is sadly afflicted with bad eye sight. He cannot distinguish an object five feet away from him without the aid of his eyeglasses, and he has many times remarked that his bad sight has in a way sharpened his memory, hearing and sense of feeling; everything considered, however, he suffers no inconvenience, inasmuch as it is of common occurrence for him to correct the fault of an actor who has made a mistake many feet behind—he claims that he feels it, and although "The Tenderfoot" company numbers 75 people, nevertheless, he will single out the person who is unlucky enough to strike the wrong note, even though there are many behind him, and it is a known fact that the company feel safer, from his reprimands when they are standing in front of him than when he is standing in front of them, because his sense of hearing and instinct is so much stronger than his eyesight and he most naturally does not entirely give in to his affliction.

Theatersgoers will have noticed that no matter what character Mr. Carle may assume, a large pair of eyeglasses are always a part of his make-up. Even when he puts on his feathers and long bill as one of the Storks in "The Storks" the eyeglasses, are very much in evidence. And they are "practical" eyeglasses.

to use a stage expression. That is, they are real eyeglasses fitted with extremely strong lenses and are more for use than for show.

The fact is, that Mr. Carle is extremely nearsighted and without his eyeglasses is practically blind, so far as finding his way around even a stage is concerned. When he was younger in the business, Mr. Carle used to go occasionally without glasses, but he had an experience once which taught him the folly of running the risk. It happened in London, when he was playing a straight part, in which eyeglasses would have been somewhat out of place.

As an incident in the play, he had at one time in the second act to leave the stage at the left and run as rapidly as possible around behind the scenes so as to come on at the right without a moment's delay. On the fateful night he made his exit and ran behind the scenes to what he thought, with his defective eyes, was the proper entrance. It happened, however, that it was not an entrance at all, the space being filled for three feet from the floor with a solid piece of scenery representing a stone wall. In his haste Mr. Carle never saw the wall and over it he pitched headlong, making quite the most sensational entrance he ever made on any stage as he landed in the audience and incidentally hurt two ladies and also himself, and as a consequence lost his job.

Another mistake caused by his nearsightedness happened in Chicago a few weeks ago, for although he constantly wears eyeglasses nevertheless he is unable to see farther than a short distance on the stage, and in looking out over the footlights he is unable to distinguish faces in the front row of seats. The contour of a person impresses him however, if the contour happens to be exceptional. Mr. Carle had noticed two men who had aisle seats in the front row on one side of the house. They were in those same seats at every performance and had been steady attendants for more than a week before the comedian remarked it. On coming off the stage one night, he said to Gilbert Gregory, his companion: "Have you noticed those two men in the front row? They are here every night and even at the matinees. They must be stuck on the show for fair."

Mr. Gregory asked for the location of the seats to make his own visual observation. At the conclusion of the next performance he said to Carle: "I've found out who those men are."

"Have you?" said Carle. "I'll bet they're rich old coigners and have girls in the company."

"Not much," said Gregory. "They're the French horn players. There isn't room for them in the orchestra pit, and those seats are set aside for them at every performance."

NATURE'S OWN CURE.
Hyomel Cures Catarrh Without Dangerous Drugging of the Stomach.
Not until Hyomel was discovered has it been possible to truthfully say that a remedy for catarrh was known.
This remedy is breathed through the Hyomel inhaler for a few minutes four times a day, and during that time every particle of air taken into the lungs passes through and is impregnated with the germ killing and health giving Hyomel. It is the only treatment that cures catarrh.
Stomach drugging often causes disordered digestion or brings on some other diseases and never makes a permanent cure of catarrh. Hyomel not only kills the germs in the throat and nose but penetrates to the minutest air cells in the lungs and enters the blood with the oxygen, killing the germs in the blood. It frees the mucous membrane from poisonous microbes and gives perfect health.
A complete outfit costs but $1.00, and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomel for several weeks treatment.
King's Pharmacy and Peoples Drug Co. have so much faith in the merit of Hyomel that they agree to return the money to any purchaser who may be dissatisfied.

A delightful harvest home dancing party was given by the Y. P. S. at Central hall last evening. There was an excellent attendance and all had a jolly time. Prof. Smith's orchestra furnished the music. The dance was given at this time because of the bad weather at the last affair, which caused the attendance to be small.

FLAG DEDICATION FOR THE GERMANS

Sons of Fatherland to Entertain, Next Month—Many Visitors Coming.

The Bower City Verein, No. 31, G. V. G., at West Side Odd Fellows hall on November 6th will hold a big celebration and flag dedication. The new banner which will be displayed for the first time that evening has been secured under the direction of a special committee made up of Fred Vogel, John Wayfield and Fred Salof. The emblem of the lodge was made by Thierbach, the well known costumer and lodge man in Milwaukee, and cost $150. At the time of the celebration there will be a number of men well known in the different branches of the society in the city from Milwaukee, Eau Claire, Fort Atkinson, Monroe, Jefferson, New Glarus and a number of other towns. The president of the grand lodge, Joseph Hauck, of Milwaukee, will attend and Secretary Ignatz Wetzel, also of the Cream City, will take part. The common council has been asked to help in the justification and the city fathers accepted and further agreed to come in a body. Mayor Wilson will make an address and there will be a number of speeches by well known Germans. This gathering will also celebrate the eighth anniversary of the founding of the local order. The Concordia has also been asked to assist and there will probably be thirty members present of the famous club who will give several musical selections. A regulation German banquet will be a part of the lodge's hospitality so the men who attend from Milwaukee will have reason to believe that Janesville is as much like the Vaterland as the city famous for its beer. After the banquet and program there will be dancing and merrymaking and the plans indicate that a royal good time is in order. The local branch of the society is in flourishing condition and has seventy-three members. The men at the head are Peter Webster, president; William Richter, treasurer, and C. E. Hermann, secretary. From the interest that is being taken in the Bower City Verein indications are that the German population is increasing more in proportion now than it has at times in the past.

RUMORS ARE RIFE OF MANY MORE FAILURES TO FOLLOW
Baltimore, Md., Oct. 20.—Rumors are flying thick and fast today in the financial circles and several institutions are said to be in a dangerous condition but there is nothing to support the statements on. There is much anxiety on the part of inspectors. Some have withdrawn their funds from other banks but nothing which might be called a run has been indulged in. Receiver White of the Union Trust asserts every creditor will be paid in full.
